Hello, everyone. Thanks for attending tonight's event. Let me start with the early history of our charity I savor it savor was founded by a retired optometrist Timothy gains. I have spent much of my working life at eye saver. I am 60 years old now. And I started working for this organization 15 years ago, when I left a corporate position to help people with eye problems. Now our charity has been helping people for three decades. You may know that we are now doing various other things to help people with eye problems. That includes medications for children with eye diseases, and operational help to those in the public who have eye problems. But when Mr. Gaines just founded eye saver, he wanted the program to be able to offer common eye equipment to those who needed it. We receive occasional donations from corporations and charity groups. Now we have over 1500 volunteers who work on the streets with the little red donation boxes, which many of you are familiar with. And this is the main source of funding for us. Besides, we are planning to work to secure donations from wealthy benefactors. Many people are passionate about charity cause and have been inquiring how to donate money to us. I really appreciate that. But our main need is to collect glasses for our patients. Many of you have multiple pairs of old glasses in your possession. And we encourage you to gather these pairs which you no longer need, and donate them to our cause. In doing this, you'll be able to make sure that someone else can see better. Most of us cannot imagine a life in which we are unable to see well. This is why your eyeglass donations are so critical to our mission. And as a side note, we offer full time positions. Let me know if you are interested. Our goal is to make people aware that even the smallest of donations can help change a person's life, so your donation can be a turning point for them. The other day, when I was talking to some people on the street, they were surprised to find out how easily some AI problems can be cured. And I'm proud to say that our next program will aim at educating people about common eye diseases, we are able to prevent many fatal eye problems. In order to publicize our charity program, we surely need to do some advertising. When we first started our program, we used computers to create awareness for our cause, for instance, promoting seminars in which we informed people as to how they could help us to solve AI problems. But in recent years, the main means of advertising our program is through audio recordings. We have found it cost efficient and effective. It's good to know that many of our staff are recommending our program to their friends and colleagues. But I am afraid that our training cannot show people the whole picture of our program. Before you hear the rest of the talk, you have some time to look at questions 17 to 20.

I would like to tell you about some organizations which have played important roles in the development and success of ice saver. Our affiliation with the National Vision Fund Finding group has allowed us to gain fame and to become even more significant. So many people around the country are coming for our services. Our association with the eye for the future organization has allowed us to run cooperative ads, by which we seek producers of equipment to work with us. Meanwhile, some of our staff has been sent to this organization for some special training, their skills should be improved very soon. Also, we have had a longtime cooperation with Sam's ik institution. Our relationship with it has given us the opportunity to link with many different academic institutions, including colleges and universities with good reputation. And we have a similar friendship with a group called youth health. Our connection with that group allows us to link directly with young kids. Since this is a crucial stage in their growth. We plan to contact with some colleges and hope that with their help, more college students could get to know our program. So as you can see, we have all bases covered in linking with students as we have affiliations directly with both administrators and the students themselves. Thank you so much for your attention today. As we try to stamp out AI problems. We will appreciate your donations no matter how large or how small. We believe with our efforts, the world will be a brighter and more beautiful that's the end of section two. You now have half a minute to check your answers.
